Guidance: Postcard from the future

What's that all about?

Imagine you are living in the future. Let's say, in the year 2050. Of course, the world will be very different than it is today - but how?

You receive a postcard from a friend who asks you exactly that.

Hello!

Wow, we haven't heard from each other in a really long time! I hope this card reaches you well. I'm really interested in what your life is like now. How are you? So many years have passed!

I'm especially interested in your energy supply. Do we still have to burn coal to generate electricity? How is electricity transmitted now? Does your car still run on petrol, or is everything electric? And how much energy do you actually consume? What impact has your energy supply on people and nature?

I look forward to hearing from you. Greetings from the past!

To answer, you are handed an empty postcard. On the front, there is space to draw a picture for your friend, for them to imagine what your life looks like. You can be very creative: What does the city you live in look like? Which means of transport do you use to go to work? Where does the electricity come from that you use to charge your mobile phone – in case that you still have one?

When everyone is done, you can read your answer out loud. Maybe the others imagine a completely different world than you do?
